Chapter 1 by XOXkitkatXOX

"I really don't like this part." Dr. Hustin said, shaking his head back and forth.

"Oh dear God, please tell me your kidding..." Geoffrey said, aggressively getting up off of the ER bed. He shifted his robe, and sat back down. "Sorry, it's just that.... My mom turned over because of the virus."

"I'm sorry to hear that, but that doesn't effect the fact that you have it, too. It looks like it runs in the family." the charming doctor said. He was known for his good looks, and everybody wanted to keep him alive for it. He comes to work in a full body Ansell protective suit everyday. (look it up)

"Okay, I should probably go before my contagiousness seeps through your suit. Do you have any of those mouth protectors for coughing?" Geoffrey said. The doctor got up from the miniature rolling chair, and walked over to the cupboard. He opened it up, and a half Deadie jumped out with a syringe in his hand.

He stabbed through the suit, showing how weak it really was. The Deadie looked over at the doctor and said, "I'm not contagious, I'm just a deadie. I'm not contagious." The doctor looked at him and said, "I know, but you're still contagious. You're still contagious because you're still alive. You're still contagious because you're still breathing. You're still contagious because you're still breathing."

He backed up to the wall, and Deadies surrounded him from every side.

Pause....

First of all.... Deadies are not zombies.

They are zombie human hybrids. Well, kind of...

A while ago the zombie virus came out, and the scientists figured that maybe they could bring the infected down by making hybrids, allowing zombies and humans to live in peace....

Ultimately, the plan failed, unleashing a new virus making humanity and zombanity to turn into Deadies.

Deadies are a mix of insane humans and humanic zombies, making a chaotic mixture. It kind of cancels each of the traits out, making it a psychotic human zombie.

They can talk, of course, because they are part human, but they still have a thirst, well, hunger for brains.
